Flooding recedes along East Pearl

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Boats continued to be the chief means of transportation on several roads in Pearlington as the threat from record flood waters eased Saturday on East Pearl River.

"The river reached its highest peak early Thursday morning, registering 6.2 feet above mean sea level at my marina," Roy Baxter said.

"I think we'll be at least a week getting all this water out of here even if everything stays normal," Baxter said Saturday afternoon.

He noted the river gauge continues to show a gradually dropping level of water in the river, with 4.6 feet above mean sea level recorded about noon Saturday.

Baxter had predicted Monday he had expected the waters of East Pearl River to exceed last April's height by six to 12 inches.

The river's height at Baxter's was 6.2 feet above mean sea level Thursday morning compared to 5.6 last year.

Baxter reported he started making preparations last Saturday and had been in close contact with Jim Thornhill, Civil Defense director of Marion County in Columbia.

"Thornhill knows pretty well what is going on in Columbia and from his information we can usually guess what to expect when the floods reach here," Baxter reported.

Bert Courge, District One supervisor for the area under the water of Pearl River in Hancock, spent the past week in the area.

"If we would have gotten another six inches of water, we would have had at least another 25 or 30 homes with water inside them," Courge said.

Many homes and camps in the area were isolated by the water but did not have water inside them.

Courge said there were only about 12 residences with actual water inside them, to his knowledge.

Robert Boudin, Civil Defense director for Bay-Waveland and Hancock County returned home late Thursday night after completing CD schooling in Boone, N.C.

Boudin said Friday, "Some of the homes which were under the water not have flood insurance coverage."

"I appreciate the fine job Supervisor Courge, Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, Roy Baxter, Corps of Engineers, Civil Defense, Red Cross, volunteer firemen and volunteers did during the flood," Boudin said, commenting, "I know I am going to forget someone, so thanks to everyone."

Courge also expressed high praises for everyone, those who helped and offered to help like the other members of the Board of Supervisors, the Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, and all volunteers.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said his office would continue patrolling the flooded areas.

"We have had very little trouble and appreciate the cooperation of everyone during this crisis," Peterson added.

Coast Electric Power Association crews were monitoring the falling waters and turning electricity back on as soon as the areas were safe.

Courge commented, "The State Highway Department was a big help this time. They stayed in the area setting up blockades and giving assistance. They Highway Patrol also helped and were a big help in keeping us in touch with the Louisiana officials."

Blasts rock homes near DuPont plant

By RICH ADAMS

The assistant plant manager at the E.I. DuPont titanium dioxide plant in DeLisle said a series of three loud noises which shook some homes near the plant last week was an apparent combination of routine maintenance procedures and unusual weather conditions.

However, a man who lives only one-half mile from the new plant said the sounds were "deep, resonant sounds" resembling explosions.

Billy Cuevas of DeLisle said Friday noises coming from the plant Wednesday night "were nothing small."

"I had never experienced the sounds before. There were about three or four explosions which shook my house," Cuevas said.

"They were nothing small—the sounds were deep and resounding," he added.

Cuevas was also critical of what he called an air pollution problem emanating from the plant.

"There is a lot of air pollution here too. When the wind is right, we can see heavy smoke, and other times we can just smell pollution in the air," Cuevas said.

Larry Kniffen, assistant plant manager, said the sounds resembled 'firecrackers' and were the result of water dripping on hot equipment.

"As part of our operations, we periodically have to take hot ash out of the system," Kniffen said.

"If water drips on some of the equipment, it can sound like a firecracker," he added.

Kniffen said Wednesday's weather conditions amplified and transmitted the sounds farther than usual.

Pass Christian Fire Chief George Mixon, who also lives one-half mile from the plant, said he could hear the company's paging system as well as the sounds from his home Wednesday night.

Big John is Hancock's King Neptune choice

John D. (Big John) Rutherford, Jr., former Chancery clerk for Hancock County has been nominated by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for the title King Neptune at the City disconnects delinquents

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay Council in enforcing a 'get tough' policy ordered the utilities turned off for three delinquent customers at a public hearing Tuesday night.

The Council began the crackdown on delinquent customers in earnest last month when it ordered service cut off to four residences for failure of the householders to pay utility bills within a reasonable time.

Also Tuesday, Mayor Larry Bennett requested the Council declare a cave-in at Citizen Street and Beach Boulevard an emergency.

Council authorized the use of Site Construction Company for the repairs as soon as the company completes the Victoria and Seventh Streets repairs. Lucien Raymond reported the contractor should be ready to start Monday on the Beach-Citizen cave-ins.

Council also authorized the mayor to rent a roller to help repair some of the sections of the streets which have been severely damaged due to so much rain since the City's roller is in the shop.

Bennett said all they would need to rent the machine for was about two days to overlay a few section with asphalt.

Council then recessed the meeting and heard from a group of property owners whom they are seeking easements from for the moving of the sidewalk on North Beach Boulevard.

Ronnie Murray said he had requested the hearing with the property owners in order for them to ask some questions.

Correction

In a report on the April 1 Waveland Board of Aldermen's meeting in a previous edition, quotation of statements made at that meeting concerning disturbance complaints lodged with Waveland police against a 'Jessie' erroneously implied those complaints had been lodged against Jessie Breland of Longo Street who was mentioned earlier in the report.

The Echo apologizes for any unintended embarrassment caused Mr. Jessie Breland of Longo Street because of those implications.

Q—Will the Veterans Administration make sure that a home bought by a veteran with a VA guaranteed loan is free from defects?

REALTOR

EXCLUSIVE RIGHT TO SELL

When listing your home with a Realtor to sell, there are a variety of arrangements you can make. But if you are seriously intent on selling your home within a reasonable time and at the price you are asking, it would pay to consider making an "exclusive right to sell" agreement.

This gives the Realtor the right to his commission if he actually sells your home during the listing period, or if another Realtor sells it, or if you sell it yourself.

Under these conditions, the Realtor will have the added incentive and protection to go all-out in heavily advertising your house and showing it to prospects. He will not be afraid of bringing it to the attention of other Realtors who may have qualified prospects. As a rule, Realtors are willing to cooperate and share the single commission. That gives you the advantage of having several Realtors make a determined effort to sell your home.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at PRESSMAN REALTY, 1332 Hwy. 90 W., Waveland. Phone 467-2224. We're here to help!

Southern Savings plans new Gulfport facility

Southern Savings and Loan Association of Gulfport has announced intent to sell servicing rights on approximately $50 million or mortgage loans.

Association President T. H. Anderson said the net income of the sale after accounting for income tax should be approximately a-half-million dollars for the association.

The purchaser of the servicing rights will be Colonial Mortgage Company of Montgomery, Alabama.

Colonial currently services over $950 million in mortgage loans throughout the Southeast. Two of their offices nearest the Gulf Coast are Mobile and New Orleans.

The new capital for Southern Savings will support its expanding operations. A major expansion in the preliminary planning stages is the construction of a new main office to be located next to Angelo's on US-90.

The agreement with Colonial to sell the servicing rights is subject to investor approval.

Southern Savings is a state-chartered institution with approximately $38 million in assets.

Slow, Children At Play!

We are reluctant to revive painful memories for some, but feel it might be the best way to make a point.

Last Easter weekend, a child was struck and injured by a car on the beach road in Hancock County. A few weeks later, another child was killed on Beach Boulevard when struck by a motorcycle. There were a considerable number of near-misses in addition throughout the warm weather season.

Today marks the opening of the summer season here, and the coming alive of our beaches with children, adults and their pets—all virtually defenseless against the onrushing steel of a speeding or carelessly operated vehicle.

We would like to remind our permanent and summer residents, their guests and other visitors to Hancock that beginning today and for the next six months, our beachfront becomes the county's biggest and most beautiful playground.

We realize that the beach road is the primary avenue of travel between home and work for many, and the main artery for the daily comings and goings of many more, but the safety of pedestrians and animals should remain the number one consideration as we motor along that scenic roadway.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Bay St. Louis Chief of Police Douglas Williams and Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn have all promised increased patrols during the holiday weekend, but traffic enforcement alone cannot accomplish the job unless motorists themselves drive with an attitude of caution and cooperation.

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL -
THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

BIG BROTHER AND FREE ENTERPRISE

Perhaps the gravest threat to small business in the United States comes from an organization which is the largest electric power producer, largest insurer, largest lender, largest landlord, largest warehouse operator, largest shipowner, and largest truck fleet operator in the nation.

This same organization engages in more than 21,000 commercial and industrial activities at a cost of $10 billion a year. The organization is the federal government.

A report compiled by the Task Force on Government Competition reveals that small business could gain more than $2 billion and taxpayers could save nearly $3 billion if the federal government did not compete so heavily against private companies.

And, a conflict of interest exists in the fact that many of the government agencies which compete with private business also regulate those same private businesses.

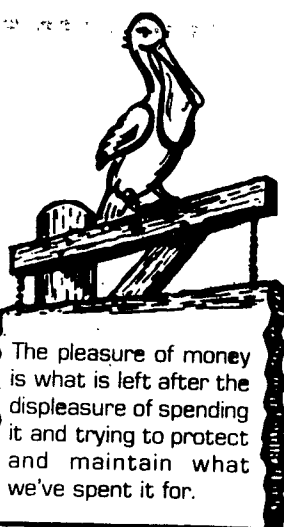

The Mississippi Economic Council concurs with some of the recommendations of the Task Force and urges the Congress to enact legislation which would provide a government system utilizing long-range planning to guard against future competition dangers.

And, at the same time, recommends that there be enacted immediately a plan to transfer federal enterprise to private enterprise where ever possible. MEC is opposed to the federal government's ownership and operation of any type of business enterprise in competition with private enterprise.

The United States was founded on the principle of free enterprise and has existed and flourished for over 200 years under that type system. But now, as the reports indicate, our federal government is involved in a headlong rush to undermine and undercut our economic system as private business cannot compete with Big Brother.

Health Tip

From the American Medical Association

Home Gardening Safety Tips Set

The home gardening season is in full sway across the nation again this month.

After long months of winter, followed by spring rains, millions of American householders are back at the annual battle with crab grass and insects in the perennial effort to add a touch of natural color and beauty.

The American Medical Association recommends gardening as good therapy and good exercise for almost everyone. Gardening also entails some risks to health and safety, most of which can be avoided.

Take it easy for the first few weekends. Give your winter-softened muscles a chance to regain strength gradually.

Gardening often brings cuts and scratches from twigs, thorns, and sharp tools. First aid usually consists of washing with soap and water and applying an adhesive bandage. Let it bleed a little to wash away impurities. Deeper cuts may require medical attention.

Power tools, particularly lawn mowers, are standard equipment for the modern home gardener. They save many an aching back. But they are potentially dangerous. Your power mower comes with instructions on its safe use. Study them carefully. If you're in doubt, check with a dealer or a mechanic on the hazards of power tools.

Insect sprays and powders, plus poisons that kill weeds, are useful adjuncts to gardening. These, also, have inherent hazards if improperly or carelessly used. Once again, read the directions, and especially the warnings.

Bees, wasps and spiders are out for the spring season too. Now and then one of them may sting you. For most of us, a sting is painful and causes swelling, but isn't really serious. If you are one of those individuals with an allergy to insect bites, ask your doctor about the desensitizing injections.

The Stennis report

REGISTRATION IS MOVE IN RIGHT DIRECTION

The President's call for a return to registration for Selective Service is a good and positive move toward strengthening our national defense.

Initiation of a registration program will greatly increase our ability to mobilize forces quickly should the need arise.

Perhaps most important at this time, such action will send the message to the Soviet Union that we are seriously concerned about their efforts to expand their influence through aggression.

As chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I have had to report to the Senate ever-increasing defense authorization and appropriations bills in recent years to keep our national defense strong.

However, as these bills have been filed, it has become more and more apparent that our greatest weakness is not a lack of weapons, facilities, or equipment. Ours is by far the best-equipped military in the world.

The weakest link in our national defense is manpower. We are not getting enough people with the capability for training to operate our sophisticated weapons systems and use the high-level technology we have developed over the years.

This is not to take away from the many dedicated and highly qualified men and women we now have in our armed forces.

The fact is, we simply do not have enough of these high-caliber young people in the service to keep our forces at maximum strength.

Therefore, I applaud the President's decision to register young men as a step in the right direction. We will have to eventually return to a selective service system which will be fair and equitable, and will provide us with enough of the talented young people we need.

However, I do not favor registration of women. At this time, we are getting enough women volunteers to fill the positions in which they are needed.

Women are providing a valuable service in the armed forces, but the selective service in general should be based on need. We certainly do not need women in combat roles.

We should not let this matter cloud the issue, but move ahead with a program to register young men. Our national defense will be greatly strengthened.

For over four years I have urged that steps be taken for another registration and an eventual stepping up of our manpower needs.

The President's move is a welcomed one. Our Committee can now pass such a bill in the Senate and thus finally get this necessary legislation passed.

Sincerely your friend,
JOHN C. STENNIS
United States Senator

Bits-N-Pieces

By Ellis Cuevas

Today being Easter Sunday, we hope each and everyone will attend the Church of your choice.

In this very fast world of our, many fail to realize the real importance of Easter.

It is probably the most attended Sunday of the year in many churches, on the other hand.

The world conditions today may be trying to tell us something, the time is now to change our priorities.

All churches need more family attendance.

Happy Easter to all!

We have a deep feeling for the very many athletes of the United States who have trained so hard for the 1980 Moscow Summer Olympics.

In many instances it is only once in a lifetime chance, and it is a shame the United States will probably have to boycott the games.

We realize that President Carter is taking a lot of flack on his decision, but even in weighing all the facts we have to agree with him in the boycott unless Russia meets our country's demands.

We were happy to see where the Levi Strauss and Company has withdrawn their offer to supply uniforms for the stadium workers in Moscow.

We also noted the support of President Carter by Sears, Roebuck and Company in withdrawing their $25,000 pledge to the U.S. Olympic Committee unless it formally agrees to boycott the Summer Olympics.

We have never felt boycotting is a good thing to do, but, it seems President Carter never has had any other avenue in this matter.

The Americans held hostage in Iran were not at home for Christmas Day and they will not be home today for Easter either.

No one paid any attention to Hitler and Germany as they moved into their neighboring countries one at a time.

Russia is now in Afghanistan, which country will be next if some nation doesn't try to stop them.

Well, it is Pilgrimage time again for our Coastal areas. We hope our yards will drain off enough for the old lawn mowers to do some trimming so we can all put our best foot forward for the events.

We know the many unselfish owners of the homes in the area are getting spruced up that are on the tour and even understand that NSTL is going all-out in preparations for the big event.

In Hancock County, the Pilgrimage will kick-off with a tour of the National Space Technology Laboratories on April 9.

Diamondhead will have five homes open to the public on April 11. As you know, Diamondhead is one of the fastest growing sections of Hancock County. If you have never visited there, this will be a good time.

The Bay-Waveland Pilgrimage will be held on April 16 and on the same day the Bay-Waveland Garden Club is staging its annual Spring Flower Show.

On the Bay-Waveland tour there is a mixture of the new and the old in homes open to the public.

We think it is only natural to thank the many who offer so much to our communities by opening their homes for the Spring Pilgrimage.

Remember, it doesn't cost any admission to visit these homes during the Pilgrimage.

We hope you will be able to attend some if not all of the events.

In conversation with several people we understand some residents did not receive a census form in the mail.

If you did not receive a census form, just call toll free 1-800-222-9410 and the census bureau will see that you receive a form in the mail.

We must remember this, it is very important for every family to fill out a census form. Many people have moved since the last census was taken, so it is very possible for the address of someone being wrong on the census forms mailed out.

There were two types of forms sent out by the Census Bureau. If you have a form and cannot fill it out yourself (as we are told the long form has a lot of hard questions), we are sure someone at the Hancock Courthouse, Bay St. Louis or Waveland City Halls would be very happy to help you in answering the questions.

Make sure you are counted!

Necaise, Walsh united at Annunciation Church

Vickie Lennette Necaise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Lamar Necaise Sr. of Pass Christian, Miss., and Alvin Joseph Walsh Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walsh Sr. of Lakeshore, Miss., were married Saturday afternoon, March 8, at a Nuptial Mass in Annunciation Catholic Church, Kiln, Ms. Rev. Marc Roetzel, S.T. officiated.

Baskets of white gladiolus interspersed with white daisies, fern and baby's breath decorated the altar.

Mrs. James Rester, organist, and Miss Melonie Lee, vocalist, both of Leetown, presented a program of nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of dacron organza and Chantilly lace fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline, Bishop sleeves, empire waistline and chapel length train.

The bodice and upper sleeves were overlaid in lace and bands of matching lace trimmed the gown's front and hemline.

Her chapel length veil of bridal illusion and Chantilly lace fell from a headpiece of lace. She carried a bouquet of white silk roses centered with an orchid and interspersed with pearl hearts, white lace ribbon and baby's breath.

Janet Necaise of Rocky Hill attended her sister as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Gidget Necaise, sister of the bride; Lisa Walsh, Lakeshore, sister of the groom; Denise Rutherford, Waveland, cousin of the bride; Gerry Lee, Beville, cousin of the bride; Tina Authement, Waveland, cousin of the groom; and Dolly Rester, Leetown.

Laura Necaise and Lea Ann Jones of Rocky Hill, cousins of the bride, were flower girls and Chantelle Necaise, cousin of the bride, served as a miniature bride.

They wore mint green satin crepe dresses with matching long sleeve jackets trimmed with green fur and head pieces fashioned of daisies interspersed with baby's breath and pearl necklace, gifts of the bride.

The maids carried nosegays of yellow roses, white daisies and baby's breath interspersed with off white ribbon streamers, and the flower girls carried white baskets of mum petals.

Kenny Walsh of Pearlinton served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were Maurice Necaise, Rocky Hill, brother of the bride; Roy Buck, Kennar, La., and Johnny Authement, Metairie, La., cousins of the groom; Larry Necaise, Necaise Crossing, cousin of the bride; Daniel Havard, Beville; and Rene Baum, Bay St. Louis.

Carey Necaise, Rocky Hill, cousin of the bride, and Bruce Authement, Metairie, cousin of the groom, were ushers.

Dougie Authement, cousin of the groom, served as a miniature groom.

The mother of the bride received guests wearing a formal dress with matching lace jacket. The mother of the groom chose a floor length yellow chiffon dress trimmed in green. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the V.F.W. Post in Kiln.

The bride's table held a five tier cake flanked by candelabra holding white spiral candles entwined with daisies.

For their wedding trip to Pensacola, Fla., the bride chose a rose color dress with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Biloxi station produces Southern Women special

WLOX channel 13 in Biloxi, will air the half hour special "Iron Magnolias" from 6:30-7 p.m.

An objective view of the Southern Woman of today...in all walks of life, of all ages, and of all intellectual levels is thrust of the production.

This none-month project required substantial research and interviews were conducted with some fifty women from Mississippi to the White House.

The title is taken from a quote, "you may think that I'm a magnolia and will bruise easily, but what I am is an iron Magnolia."

The strength of the Southern woman and her closeness to family is part of the theme of this special.

In addition to many interviews with women in Mississippi, Channel 13 conducted interviews with the following women:

-Roselyn Carter-Channel 13 went to Washington with a crew to interview the first lady specifically for "Iron Magnolias."

Though many requests are made each day for an interview with the First Lady, it was because of our broad approach to the program about Southern women that Roselyn Carter granted the interview.

-Jessica Savitch-Channel 13 sought an interview with this NBC Washington-based anchor to give insight into the Southern woman that would be different from others interviewed.

Jessica Savitch is a successful person in broadcasting who has lived and worked in throughout the world as she writes about life in the South.

To do so, she must observe, with a keen eye, life around her.

Though busy writing and lecturing, Eudora Welty granted this interview out of a the north and in the South and because of this experience is able to give much insight into job opportunities for women.

-Eudora Welty-This first lady of letters from Mississippi represents a contribution to the arts that is great.

Easter weekend wreck totals one automobile

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
There were no apparent injuries after a two-car accident about 11:45 a.m. Saturday in which one vehicle was totally wrecked in the westbound lanes of US-90 fronting Scafield's Wheel Inn Restaurant in Bay St. Louis.

At the accident scene, Bay St. Louis Patrolman Mat Karl said, "Sylvia Scafield, 62, of Gulfport, had stopped her automobile in the left westbound lane of US-90 behind another car as she was preparing to turn left across the highway."

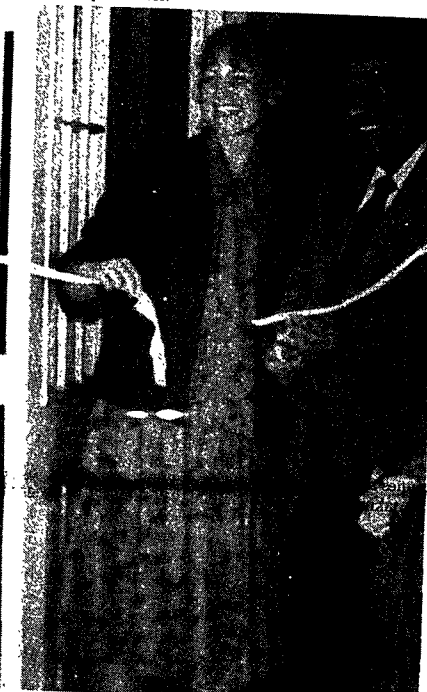

Mississippi State Highway Patrolman David Kenny of Bay St. Louis also reported at the scene, "The Scafield automobile was apparently hit, in the right rear bumper and fender, by a car driven by Carla E. Hille, 19, of Bay St. Louis."

Karl said, "The Scafield car received about $500 damage and the Hille car was a total loss, but I roughly estimated the car received about $2,000 damage."

"Mobile Medic checked both of the women involved in the accident and found no apparent injuries," Karl reported.

"A citation was given to Ms. Hille for failure to yield the right-of-way."

Also responding to the accident were Auxiliary Bay St. Louis Patrolmen Gary Griffin and Robert Williams, Firefighter Mike Willumits of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department and Mobile Medic personnel.

ANTHROPOLOGY ON ETV
"Odyssey," a new 12-week anthropology series, breaks new ground for the humanities on television with stories about people and cultures in all parts of the world. Developed by "Nova" creator Michael Ambrosino, "Odyssey" premieres on Mississippi ETV at 8 p.m., Sunday, April 16. The first program, "Seeking the First Americans," can be seen on ETV channel 19, Biloxi. "Seeking the First Americans" focuses on one of the most controversial questions in American archaeology: who first inhabited this continent and when? Archaeologists from Texas to Alaska search for clues to the identity of the first people to tread the American continent: allegedly the early hunters who, between 11,000 and 50,000 years ago, crossed the Bering Strait in pursuit of game. The "Odyssey" series is closed-captioned for the hearing-impaired.

DAY CARE CENTER—Linda Haas, left, Wendy Rupp, and Rev. Willis Britt of Main Street Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis recently conducted a planning session for a proposed weekday nursery and kindergarten center sponsored by the church. The planning committee is currently considering serving children from six-weeks to six-years-old on a full- or part-time basis. Other services considered are a tutorial program for school-aged children and special outings for full-time children of the center. To obtain more information about the program and to offer input to the planning, contact Ms. Haas at Dixie Realty in Bay St. Louis at 467-9661. Other members of the committee not present at the luncheon are Helen Mestayer, Eve McDonald, and Mrs. Ordean Powell. (Staff photo-Rich Adams)

SATAN HATES GOD'S CHILDREN! His anger is kindled even more against those who are faithful to God. But his special wrath is reserved for God's ministering servants.

The Devil has designed to destroy every true God-called minister. If your pastor is a true God-called minister, he is constantly in need of your prayers. He stands in jeopardy every month!

Last week's column closed by quoting a passage of scripture wherein God warned, "Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm"—1 Chron. 16:22; Ps. 105:15.

Satan waits to exploit every opportunity to wreck and destroy the usefulness of every minister. The devil often dupes some within the churches to do his dirty work. They become Satan's "hatchet men" to destroy God's ministering servants.

Falseness, fabrication, whole lies and half truths become the stock-in-trade of rumor-mongering, gossiping, carnal-minded church members whose feathers have been ruffled.

Many pastors have been injured or destroyed by church members whose feelings he failed to placate.

This may explain why God's Word says, "Against an Elder (minister) receive not an accusation, but before two or three witnesses"—1 Tim. 5:19.

Obviously, God has established this rule for the protection of His ministering servants as well as others who may be subjected to such malicious involvement.

This standard is designed to protect God's servants from being victimized by every.

flying rumor by the outside world as well as offended, carnal-minded church members bent on revenge against an uncompromising pastor with the courage and fortitude to tell it like it is.

Try to be your pastor's friend! Don't be among his enemies! If he is true to God, he has enough enemies!

"Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit yourselves: For they watch for your souls, as they that must give account (to God), that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: For that is unprofitable for you"—Heb. 13:17.

If you are among those who seem to pride themselves in "giving the pastor a hard time," I hope you will study this passage very prayerfully.

There's an Answer!

No sympathy

Q. I have one daughter who is married and lives near me. Although it is good to have her near, she has not been too much help during this adjustment period since the death of my husband.

She criticizes me if I cry, and never puts her arms around me to give me some sympathy and comfort. I feel sure she nusses him too, but she never says that she does.

Any ideas as to how I can reach her? Please send me a copy of the booklet, "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled." It sounds as if it might bring some comfort to me.

A. I am sending you our booklet, "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled," and any other reader who would like a copy may have one free of charge by writing to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Your problem, as we see it, is that your daughter is trying to handle her grief in her own way. You are attempting to handle grief in your way. The secret of unity and peace of mind is for each of you to respect the other's reaction and just love each other. That will develop a deeper understanding and comfort.

Begs him to stay

Q. I caught my darling husband with another woman. I told him I could forgive him and still love him dearly. But he now sleeps at his parents' home, and when he comes each day to care for our livestock I put my arms around him asking him to please come back to his home and be a father to our 21-year-old daughter and 14-year-old son.

We all three cry and ask him to please stay. But he says he can't and won't give us a reason. I love my husband and wonder what I can do to improve myself.

A. It could be that you need to examine your own romantic and sex relationship with your husband. And perhaps analyze his with you. That he won't stay with you and turns to another woman is a symptom of a deteriorating personal relationship.

Try to go back to being more like the person you were when he first loved you. And don't beg him, just re-attract him.

REVIVAL—Rev. John Moore, pastor of Mill Creek Baptist Church, will conduct a revival beginning tonight at Central Baptist Church on US-90 in Bay St. Louis. The revival begins at 7 p.m. and will continue nightly until April 11. Rev. John Loden is the pastor of the Bay St. Louis church.

REPAIRS EQUIPMENT—Charles Anderson, a Gulfport electronics engineer for the Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility, repairs a punch package for a data recorder. The mechanism is used to punch holes in a role of paper which records equipment readings. Anderson is part of a repair and calibration section which maintains equipment operated by the Water Resources Division of the U.S. Geological Survey.

IMPROVED SOLAR CELLS—Bill McDonald, a civil engineer from Picaune, explains an improved solar cell system now under development by the Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility to power some field equipment used by the U.S. Geological Survey. McDonald explained how advanced solar cell technology has significantly reduced the size of solar cells. Previously, a bank of solar cells more than twice the size shown was needed to power data recording equipment.

PROTOTYPE MANUFACTURING—C. Russell Wagner, chief of hydrologic instrumentation for the Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility at the National Space Technology Laboratories, left, inspects a portion of a water sampling system with Rick Billings, a Slidell electronics engineer, who is developing the mechanism. Shown is a water sampling mechanism and refrigerated sample storage tank to be used in an 'Urban Hydrology Program.' The system will take drainage water samples at intervals determined by a microprocessor (a simple computer) and refrigerate them for analysis by technicians.

Agency expands capabilities

New NSTL facility supplies equipment nationwide

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The U.S. Geological Survey's Water Resources Division recently dedicated its new Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

The NSTL facility is unique in that it is the only supplier of water resource instruments for all state hydrologic agencies in the U.S.

"We have about 500 different types of equipment, we store about $1½ million in equipment and will turn over about $1 million in equipment each year," said C. Russell Wagner, chief of hydrologic instrumentation for the USGS in Hancock County.

"We're set up as a separate function under the Gulf Coast Hydroscience Center which does research for the southeast quarter of the U.S.," Wagner reported.

Wagner said the hydroscience center was established at NSTL in 1972. The hydroscience building was recently expanded some 30,000 square feet to house the instrumentation facility and approximately 50 new employees were hired to meet increased needs.

"Half of the 50 new employees were hired locally," Wagner added.

"This brings the hydroscience center staff to over 110 persons," Wagner said.

"All of the equipment we own we develop, test and service," Wagner stated.

"Each state field office has a computer terminal where an order for a particular piece of equipment can be called in to our office. Our function is to supply the support equipment to meet each area's needs," the chief explained.

"We buy and sell equipment to state agencies and we also have a rental program for some pieces of government equipment," Wagner added.

Wagner said the U.S. Geological Survey is the federally mandated lead agency in the collection of basic hydrologic data and water-resources investigations. Included in the agency's mission is the responsibility to monitor the quantity and quality of both surface water and ground water in the nation's streams, lakes and ground-water aquifers.

"The increased concern with the environment and energy persistent chemical substances has created an increased need for hydrologic data. Such data requires increasingly complex monitoring instrumentation," the chief reported.

Wagner said his office is under one of four USGS branches with national headquarters in Reston, Va.

"We are under the Water Resources Division of the USGS. There is also a Conservation Division, which deals with oil exploration; a Topographic Division, which is a mapping division; and a Geological Division, which deals with earth formations," Wagner explained.

Wagner said the NSTL location was selected because,

"We wanted facility located centrally in the U.S. and near a major city. The availability of NSTL and an existing office was also a contributing factor," Wagner said.

Wagner said the instrumentation facility utilizes on-site contractors and other local suppliers to the greatest extent possible. The facility makes procurements of equipment through national competitive purchases and intends to use small, local businesses in the fabrication of small and unique pieces of equipment.

"One of the things we had hoped for were more small contractors to build our equipment and we need some retired engineers who would like to work part time," the chief added.

In addition to supplying instrumentation to state field offices of the USGS, the Hancock County facility is responsible for the development of new instrumentation and improvement of existing equipment; evaluation of 'off-the-shelf' instrumentation from the private sector and existing equipment within the division; and maintenance and calibration of water resource equipment.

"Our division does a lot of Department of Housing and Urban Development flood insurance studies, although we did not do the local study; regional aquifer studies monitoring ground water supplies; and statistical packages for municipalities so officials may make better water resource decisions," Wagner explained.

Wagner explained.

"One of the things which has just gone from development and testing to production is a new high quality, battery operated water quality monitor which can be easily transported and set-up at a stream site," the hydrologic chief said.

The water quality monitor previously used by state agencies was a cumbersome three-foot by three-foot square piece of heavy equipment which now fits into a water-proof stainless steel tank about the size and shape of a household bucket.

"This water quality monitor measures temperature and electrical conductivity of a water sample. The information gathered by these monitors is analyzed by our labs in Denver, Colo. or Atlanta, Ga.," Wagner reported.

"We are also doing a lot of ground water monitoring in the southwest where the water table is dropping and the deeper water has more of a mineral content," Wagner said.

"There are also problems with garbage dumps contaminating water supplies... areas with sand and gravel soils have more problems with this type of pollution," Wagner explained.

"We're providing scientific information in a very specialized field so managers (government officials at various levels) may make decisions on water resource management," Wagner stated.

"There's a lot of concern with the quality of urban runoff water because of the general degradation of water quality," the hydrologic chief reported.

In our 'Urban Hydrology Program' we're developing a sophisticated sampling system which will be triggered by rainfall and transfer samples to a refrigerated storage area," Wagner reported.

"This device is in the manufacturing stage now," Wagner said.

"We are also monitoring water quality where strip mining is being done," Wagner added.

"Frank Koopman of Bay St. Louis, who recently retired from our office of the USGS, developed a miniature device (about the size of a matchbox) which senses vibration with a solid state circuit and gives the running time of a piece of equipment," Wagner stated.

"This is a revolutionary piece of equipment because no wiring is necessary, but with the magnetic back you can place the device on a piece of equipment and monitor the running time of a piece of machinery," Wagner explained.

"This device will mostly be used on water pumps to monitor running times to track water usage in different areas," Wagner said.

The Water Resources Division and its Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility has hundreds of different types of equipment available to state agencies.

SOME $1½ MILLION—C. Russell Wagner, chief of hydrologic instrumentation at the Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility, inspects some of the $1½ million in equipment stored at the National Space Technology Laboratories' agency. Wagner, of Picaune, said state field offices of the U.S. Geological Survey purchase or rent equipment from the Hancock County facility. The NSTL organization is the only source for water quality instruments for state agencies in the U.S.

NEW MONITOR DEVELOPED—Jim Rorabaugh, a Bay St. Louis electronics engineer, left, looks inside of a miniature water quality monitor along with C. Russell Wagner, chief of hydrologic instrumentation for the Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility at the National Space Technology Laboratories. The miniature monitor fits into a bucket-size container and was developed from a larger model which is a three-foot by three-foot cube.

TIPPING BUCKET RAIN GAUGE—Rick Billings, a Slidell electronics engineer with the Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility, inspects a tipping bucket rain gauge which will activate a water sampling system, part of one of 20 prototypes being manufactured in Hancock County. Billings said the gauge will collect a certain amount of water and then tip, which activates the automatic water sampling system. Billings also said previous systems would only operate at regular intervals without regardless of rainfall.

ADAPTS SAMPLER—Jack Hardee, a Slidell hydrologic technician, drills holes in a portion of water sampling device to be used in an 'Urban Hydrology Program' water sampler. Hardee said the Hydrologic Instrumentation Facility will develop 20 prototypes of a water sampling system, triggered by rainfall. Specifications will be drawn for the device to be contracted out to manufacturers after the device is perfected. Hardee will be available to state geological offices to help solve instrument problems.

Space shuttle experiment deadline nears

Young people can see their ideas for scientific experiments carried out in space by taking part in The University of Mississippi's second annual space competition.

The Ole Miss School of Engineering is sponsoring the competition, Project Explorer Ole Miss, in cooperation with the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Under the Project Explorer program, students can submit proposals for experiments in any area of engineering sciences. Winning proposals will be carried out on board the Getaway Special Space Shuttle, scheduled for launching in 1984.

Dr. Ted Huddleston, professor of chemical engineering at Ole Miss, said that Ole Miss will be the first university in the state to send student projects into space.

"The school of engineering has reserved space, and there will be room to operate several different experiments," Dr. Huddleston said. "We signed up to participate in the program because we wanted to give bright, young students the opportunity to see their ideas in space."

Deadline for experiment proposals is May 15. Winners and runner-ups will be selected by June 15.

"A student whose proposal is accepted can receive aid in developing it," Dr. Huddleston explained. "What we want from the student is creativity and enthusiasm—materials, technical advice and financial support will be provided."

"We would prefer more high school students to get involved. The main problem is that students are reluctant to take advantage of this opportunity. Most of them ask themselves, 'What do I know about a space shuttle?' We are trying to overcome this by emphasizing that professionals are available to help them put their project in space and that it won't cost them any money."

Students whose proposals are selected will be awarded renewable scholarships at Ole Miss, where they will continue their research with faculty assistance in designing and building the experiments.

Participants in Project Explorer will be able to consult with a faculty advisory panel at Ole Miss, as well as space professionals at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama.

Dr. Huddleston said information has been sent to superintendent of all schools in Mississippi, but that the competition is not limited to Mississippi students. For additional information, contact Dr. Huddleston through the School of Engineering, University, MS 38677.

WHO CARES ABOUT THE COAST?

You do if you live, work, or play in Jackson, Harrison, or Hancock County...

We all enjoy the environment of the coast for its fishing, swimming, and other recreational uses, but development puts heavy demands on the coastal resources we value. Controversial decisions balancing development with the environment must be made if future generations are to enjoy our coast.

The Bureau of Marine Resources is responsible for achieving a balance between development and the environment through the Mississippi Coastal Program. During the next 14 days, the Bureau will publish a seven part series of notices to inform you about this program. The series will explain how the program will encourage development in designated areas while controlling activities that would damage the environment. It will appear in this paper between now and the public hearings scheduled for the week of April 21.

What can you do?

We hope this seven part series will arouse your interest in the April public hearings. Your ideas about the Mississippi Coastal Program are important, and we want you to be heard.

Look for the rest of this series; cut the notices out. You may find them helpful at the public hearings.

ASCS Hancock-Pearl River

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is considering loan and purchase program provisions for 1980-crop honey.

Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River - Hancock County ASCS Office said farmers have until April 14 to recommend loan and purchase rates, program availability dates and general operating provisions for the program.

The recommendations should be addressed to the director, Production Adjustment Division, USDA-ASCS, Room 3630, South Building, Washington, D.C. 20013.

According to Gennin, loans and purchases are being offered on 1979-crop honey stored in bulk and other eligible containers, on or off farms.

There are approximately 10 honey producers in Pearl River and Hancock Counties, Gennin reports.

24. In Memoriam

Ollie L. 'Bo' Finch
When ever I see a garden I always think of Bo He had a special talent And loved to make things grow Some say he wasn't always The best that he could be Regardless of his human self He was the best—to me. At odd times I remember His warm and pleasant face How glad he was to see you His manners and his grace. He went from us so swiftly And we who loved him well are saddened by the memory That we didn't say farewell Sometimes when I am sleeping He'll creep into my dreams I see him there, as I saw him here In a pair of old blue jeans And he's working in a garden That's bright in the morning sun I know he tills this rich new soil His life has just begun..... EASTER
'In each waking flower and each singing bird, The promise of Easter is witnessed and heard. In this restless world of struggle It is very hard to find Answers to the questions That daily come to mind- We cannot see the future, What's beyond is still unknown, For the secret of God's Kingdom Still belongs to Him alone- But He granted us salvation When His Son was crucified, For life became immortal Because our Saviour died.' Dear Sons, may you rest in the beautiful paradise. Sadly missed by: Father, Mother, sisters And other relatives. 4-6-pd
